Best Practice: Citizens grievance handling

- Nandita Mathur, Coordinator CMAR

Ward office for handling grievances of citizens of Jaipur

Situation: Jaipur is the 11th largest city in terms of population as per 2001 census, with a population of 23.23 lacs living in an area of 484 sqkms. The population of the city is growing with the rate of 4.4% per annum. It is one of the fastest growing metropolitan cities in India. The city is divided into six geographical zones, with 70 municipal wards. With the growing population various problems related to city management like, cleanliness, sanitation, street lights, sewerage etc arise, which is very difficult for Municipal Corporation to handle and manage and for common man to comply with regulations with bottlenecks and accompanying inconvenience.

New Initiative: Jaipur Municipal Corporation has established ward office to address to all grievances of the citizens and to ensure de-centralized functions. Any grievances related to following are mainly handled by the office in the chairmanship of concerned ward member of a ward:-

- Cleanliness
- Light
- Street Animals
- Sewerage and manhole
- Dead Animals
- Illegal construction and encroachment

In every ward, an office has been established which has one room for the ward member and a computer operator with computer with grievance redressal

Software and a waiting room for citizens. In the chairmanship of concerned ward member of a ward, through Jan sunvai all the grievances are entered in the computer. The hard copy of enlisted problems in the ward office is sent to head office and further to the respective officers for redressal. Apart from this there is a Health Inspector (I QkbZ fujh(kd) in every wards office who takes the attendance of staff and handles all problem related to cleanliness block of sewerage and manholes, dead animals. The infrastructure available in each office is a table and chair for ward representative, 6 chairs for visitors and a computer table and chair for computer operator.

Future Plan: For early addressing and disposal of grievances and information, the ward office computers shall be connected to a broadband or wi-fi connectivity to with grievance software through Jaipur municipal Corporation's website Jaipurmc.org.
